To Whom It May Concern:

I read in this morning's Washington Post about the possibility of low-wattage radio broadcasting being allowed by your agency.

I am writing to express enthusiastic support for this idea. It would provide an excellent forum for true community-based voices to be heard, and a very important alternative to the increasingly corporate-controlled megamedia.

I urge you to do all you can to make radio accessible in this manner, including adopting minimal requirements to ensure micro-broadcasting's affordability for neighborhood groups.

Please make this issue visible on your website and encourage other regular citizens to weigh in with their views.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,
Lars Negstad
