Mr. Kennard,

I would like to thank you personally for your foresight and consideration in the LPFM matter. After reading your interview in Radio World, I get the feeling you know what it's like to have "Radio" in your veins. With todays mass consolidation in broadcasting and loss of broadcasting jobs, this will certainly give many more persons the opportunity to continue or get back into something they dearly love. Just a personal thought if I may, I know there are people on both sides of commercial and non commercial. My personal feeling is if all LPFM stations were made to be non commercial, then you would truly find only the most dedicated persons wanting to construct and operate a community radio station. I am certainly prepared to do just that with my own money (My wife and I are in the average income, we're not wealthy by any stretch of imagination). Even though we're not talking about large coverage areas, some people that just want to "make a buck" would surly be interested in a station. If they won a licence over someone just wanting to serve their community, that would be a travesty. Again thank you for your excellent forethought and consideration.

Respectfully

Rick Johnson
