

I would like to praise the FCC for proposing to allow low-power stations to be able to broadcast. I have always wanted to start my own low-power station, after working here at KHCA-FM in Manhattan, KS for over 2 years. I have had a permanent smile reading through your document, it all sounds like a very good deal. What harm could come out of this, there would be a whole new selection of radio stations for listeners to choose, if everyone followed the rules, full/low power stations could live together in harmony. I urge you to please follow through with the proposal in benefit to radio listeners everywhere, and to give those citizens wishing to broadcast (just like myself) a chance. Thank you.
