

I think the idea of creating low power FM is great. It will allow people, like myself, who are interested in broadcasting and local programming to be able to start a radio station in their community without having to have millions for start-up capital to either start or buy an existing station. It is also a definite way to bring back radio that focuses more on programming and the community instead of profits.