

I am strongly in favor of the creation of low power FM stations!
I would also encourage the FCC to uphold the idea that broadcasting corporations, existing radio owners and other corporations be left out of the bidding. Today's radio has become a generic representation of a few huge broadcasting quasi-monopolies, and radio has lost its community or local flair. The LPFM's would bring this back to life. The FCC should give priority to bids for new frequencies that benefit the community in one form or another. As for advertising, this may be the only way a station can support itself unless it can be a part of some other profit-making activity. Finally, I would like to express my gratitude to the FCC for considering this law as it will greatly improve local radio in communities across the country.
