

I support the licensing of low-power FM radio broadcasters. I also feel that individuals who have been found guilty of violating FCC regulations by operating low-power broadcasting stations in the past should be cleared to operate legally under any new laws allowing such broadcasting. In general, I feel that the concentration of control of broadcasting with a few large corporations is bad for this country and should not be encouraged.