

Bravo! The proposal to license new low-power FM stations is a wonderful idea. It will be exciting to see what uses community leaders are able to put the technology to. In an era of fractured communities and the dominance of huge, bland, impersonal media, this could be a small contribution to holding our communities together.

By the way, this response system is incredibly cumbersome. I am a very computer literate user, with several years experience as a freelance writer in the computer field, and found it difficult to follow the instructions. Even now, I'm not sure I've completed this form correctly (In fact, I had not, having omitted the "DOCUMENT TYPE" field, and this comment came back to me.). I've completed forms on many web sites, and though I know you have many proceedings to deal with, I suspect it shouldn't have to be this complicated to offer a comment. Can I respectfully suggest that your commenting procedure needs work if you really want input from members of the public? Thank you.
