

In regards to your proposal to allow LPFM licensing, I would like to confirm my support for such licenses as they would benefit the interests of many musicians and DJs who otherwise would not benefit from broadcasting services. These licenses could help rejuvenate the interest into locally produced music in many communities both small and large all across the United States. These licenses would be a valuable service to musicians whose music is refused by larger corporate radio stations on the basis of programming by consultant. I would hope the commission would approve the new proposed rules and also allow for use of these licenses commercially as a small business venture likely to be used by minorities and others whose format might not be welcomed by corporate radio. Thank you for the opportunity to present these comments to the Commission.
