

Think this would be an excellent service which would benefit the communities they serve. There is plenty of excellent commercially available equipment out there to accomodate the service which are broadcast quality form a technical perspective. I do question the licensing requirement to some extent. If we are going to do that, why not just have people make a normal commercial FM service application?