

Our nation is not one culture, but hundreds, and means for bringing them together are few. Low-power FM could be such a means.

If I could own a small radio station I would. I would use it to support and organize digital artists and musicians like myself. The internet is not a broadcast medium yet; receivers for it are not yet portable.

Radio frequencies are a kind of real estate. Citizens should be able to buy lots of all sizes.