

This is an excellent idea, a long time coming. It gives me hope that you would even consider it. Community based radio programs are incredibly important, and you should make efforts to be as inclusive as possible. I support all efforts to license and legitimize former (a possibility noted in the "Facts") and current radio violators. I think that you are wrong to exclude them. Their persistence is not an evil disregard for the law, it is a protest about the unjustness of it. They all deserve a chance to be broadcasters, regardless of their past history.
