

Currently, local communities are not well served as far as non-commercial interests go - it's difficult to impossible for local stations to get licensing and the FCC looks rather poorly upon "pirate" radio. It'd be in the public's best interest for the LPFM proposal to go through. (The Executive Summary: "Screw the Man! Go go LPFM!")