

in regards to the proposal to open frequencies for lower power users I must express my extreme support. There must be more places different ideas, cultures and music in this country that is so dominated by mass culture. The advertising dollar is killing the unique, original, creative, and dynamic.

I'm a student at Haverford college and I started an on campus AM carrier current radio station this year. However, we are unable to interact with the surrounding communities via radio with AM carrier current. We very much want to reach a larger and more diverse audience with our educational and unique radio broadcasts. However it is at present impossible to obtain an FM license. This proceeding gives us some hope.

Questions: how can we obtain a license if this change is made? How can we complete a good application?

for more information look at WHRC's webpage <http://www.students.haverford.edu/whrc>

thank you%

jon miller