

I would like the FCC to again license low power radio stations. I believe doing so will create many new jobs and will provide types of coverage that is almost impossible to find on radio today -- coverage of local legislative and advisory bodies, information on government services and community based organizations as well as religious and cultural affairs in our communities. Thank you for the opportunity to comment. Ray Olinger