Comment on docket #FCC 99-25

DOCKET FILE COPY ORIGINAL

FCC MAIL ROOM

For too long the public airwaves have been controlled by commercial interests for commercial ends. This has led to increasing commercialization and oligopolistic control of radio broadcasting. In the 1920s this could be excused since policy makers did not know that backing commercial broadcasters, primarily RCA, would lead to only a handful of voices being heard on the air. More than seventy-five years later, the FCC has proposed a dramatic about-face, granting the public real access to radio. Who better to make sure that the spectrum is used in the public interest, convenience, or necessity than the public itself? This is not to say that commercial interests cannot fulfill this aim; it is only to say that this goal will be subordinated to the desire to maximize profits.

Here in Los Angeles, these priorities have starved whole audiences, while simultaneously curtailing access for many of Los Angeles' residents. Arbitron, the leading ratings service in this and other markets, is only now addressing systematic undercounting of some audiences which depresses advertising revenue and service quality of stations focusing on minority audiences. Many commercial outlets almost completely ignore the majority of the city: talk radio fails to address issues relevant to the largely Latino Eastside and Mixed-race Southside. Even public radio, in an effort to serve elite audiences, has taken to ignoring these parts of the city as well. In fact, the one non-commercial radio station located in the Southside, KUSC, plays music which patently reinforces the separation between their classical music loving audiences located throughout the Metropolitan area, and their working class neighbors right across the street.

This market needs low-power FM stations to address issues consistently ignored by commercial and non-commercial broadcasters alike. These stations will not only serve many neighborhoods ignored, it will also give a voice to those who are so often silenced. And while this silence may seem to be a luxury, remember that when it has roared, the City has burned. Twice.

A new low power radio service in Southside Los Angeles would serve a much-needed role within the community. Programming would be focused specifically on community issues and concerns that the current FM spectrum cannot and will not even begin to address. Public services announcements of true importance to the residents are not currently aired in Los Angeles. These include multi-lingual messages that are vital to the community, local cultural events, information on elections, and emergency updates. Music programming would be extremely eclectic and support the growth of new sounds and local musicians. Programming time would also be dedicated to playing world music that reflects the variety of cultures represented in the area; Guatemalan, El Salvadoran, Senegalese, Belizean, Jamaican, Korean, regional Mexican music, and numerous other regional forms.

The internet has become an alternative medium for the public to broadcast but just like FM radio it is elitist. The cost of receiving this medium makes it unavailable majority of the public. The communities currently being ignored by FM radio generally are those that cannot afford a home computer or internet access. On the other hand almost everyone owns or can afford a radio. Due to the worldwide reach of the internet it cannot effectively serve a specific local community.

Beyond programming content itself a low power FM outlet will serve the community by getting them directly involved in the running of the station. Training programs will be established to give people hands on experience with broadcasting. On air talent drawn from the local area will give the station real credibility and power. Programming is more relevant when it comes from your peers. Since USC is an established university we have the resources available to train people outside of the immediate area. With a pool of professionally trained individuals low power services can be established throughout the city in areas of need.

Moving into the millenium our communities are becoming more global in nature. The narrow focus of today's FM spectrum cannot hope to serve the public interest. Low power FM is especially needed in Los Angeles. As we well know issues and needs of the community that are consistently ignored can become explosive.

Please consider our plea for the reestablishment of Low Power FM. Let the enclosed petitions serve as a testament of our community's desire to see the return of such an important element to their lives.

We believe that the creation of low-power radio stations is vital to the diversity of American radio. Small, community broadcasters that cater more effectively to their listeners need to exist. As citizens who believe in freedom of speech we demand that space be allotted for stations such as these. We applaud the FCC's proposal for low-power radio (Docket #99-25) and ask that they swiftly move to make it a reality.

Creemos que la creación de estaciones de radio de bajo voltaje es vital para la diversidad de la radio Americana. Pequeñas, comunidades emisoras que sirven más efectivamente a sus radioescuchas necesitan existir. Como ciudadanos quienes creemos en la libertad de expresión demandamos que espacios sean alocados para estaciones como estas. Aplaudimos la proposición de la FCC's para estaciones de bajo voltaje.

(Registro #99-25) y pedir que se muevan rápidamente para hacerlo una realidad.

We believe that the creation of low-power radio stations is vital to the diversity of American radio. Small, community broadcasters that cater more effectively to their listeners need to exist. As citizens who believe in freedom of speech we demand that space be allotted for stations such as these. We applaud the FCC's proposal for low-power radio (Docket #99-25) and ask that they swiftly move to make it a reality.
