

The 1-10 watt micropower station would be of great benefit to the ethnic enclaves in the Detroit area. The small villages and ethnic groups are not served by the existing absentee owners of the radio stations. The small stations once serving the small towns are now run by corporations who treat them as if they were 250,000 watt regional stations catering to the "lowest common demoninator".