

I currently am the programming manager for WWPI, the college radio station at Worcester Polytechnic Institute. We currently are not broadcasting over the "airwaves", the only broadcasting we have is over the campus cable system and the internet. We have been fundraising for the past 5 years in order to get enough money for a tower. these efforts have feel way short of our expectations. When we heard about the possibility of low power FM we knew that we would be able to handle this. So by allowing low power fm it will allow us to broadcast since we so not have the neccesary funds to broadcast in the conventional way. This we allow us to reach all our students since only 30% live on campus and give us the exposure we need. I emlore you to act upon this for our sake and for radio's sake. Today it seems that every station is owned by large corporations that own many stations and this will allow more competetion. thank you
