

I think that LPFM should be adopted by the FCC, because currently we are limited to few programming choice's in most area's. I also think that these station's could be commercial station's, if the licensee followed the same or similar guideline's as current commercial broadcaster's. LPFM commercial station's could help fill the lower advertising budget of small business owner's since the programming of most LPFM station's will probably be of lower quality then most current commercial broadcaster's. I've worked at three commercial radio station's in Indiana, and I graduated from Professional Broadcaster's Institute of Indianapolis in 1991 and I would even like a chance to produce high quality radio in the Muncie Indiana area, which is currently obsolete in my opinion. Thank's, Chris A. Fields,.
