

I am interested in operating a 1 watt or 10 watt microradio station assuming that this service becomes a reality. I would like to see commercial broadcasting permitted. I would like to help clean up the mess of garage sale and real estate open house signs in my neighborhood by offering very low cost radio advertisements. People could tune to my station for a list of events and directions. I envision charging $5.00 to $20.00 (depending upon the length of the ad) for a week's worth of advertising. This will not be a significant source of income for me but it will defray my equipment and operating expenses. I can run public service messages for the public school which is one block from my home.

I would like to see a one per person license rule with a residency requirement. I would like the license to be renewable and not excessively difficult for an individual to obtain.

Respectfully submitted,
Francis M. Columbus
