

The FCC needs to regulate and protect rebroadcasting so that the frequencies used for rebroadcast cannot be usurped. This is particularly necessary in the case of government funded NPR stations that are being usurped by Christian broadcasters who don't want their communities to receive balanced news that enable listeners to make their own judgements on issues.

Sally Williams, retired Chair
Berkeley Telecommunications Task Force

For a copy of our Telecom Report, please go to the City of Berkeley website.