

I think the idea of broadband over powerlines is a good idea, Provided that the power companies can insure that there would be no harmful interference to the Amateur Radio Bands. I agree this type of system has much promise, but I think it needs to be looked at closely before anything is done.