

This idea has a great potential to cause interference. Power lines act as transmission lines for 60Hz because of the long wavelength. It is not designed to operate in the 10's of MHz range and would no longer act only as transmission line but as an antenna as well.

BPL should not be approved.