

As a long-time amateur radio operator, I am concerned about high speed data providing interference to the amateur service, particularly if there is no requirement that such interference be cleaned up. At the same time, I am concerned that our activity will induce interference into the digital signals on the power lines, something we will have virtually no ability to eliminate.