

I am an amateur radio operator. I am opposed to this use of power lines for broadband internet service. The potential for interference to amateur by such service is great. Conversely, the potential for interference by wireless RF services to power line internet connections can cause problems for the home consumer of these services.