

In areas where the local utilities are already transmitting data over power lines there is often considerable broadcast interference observed within several hundred feet of the transmission lines. Such BCI can effectively blanket weaker AM stations and can even be objectionable on stronger stations. I am not in favor of any technology that will increase the level of interference to existing services. BPL seems to be such a technology and should not be authorized.