

The proposal for internet over powerlines requires careful study and regulation to avoid interference with amateur radio services. My training (BSEE) and experience (30 years at TRW) in communication electronics and radio propagation lead me to conclude that this is a situation substantially different than DSL over twisted pair telephone lines. Please proceed very cautiously.