

I believe tha BPL should not be implemented until it can be demonstrated that there will be no interference to those attempting to receive weak radio signals in the high frequency portion of the spectrum. At this point there is every reason to suspect that the overall noise floor in that region of the spectrum would be raised significantly. It should be established that this would not be the case before BPL is allowed to be used.