

My research into BPL leads me to understand that this technology is not ready for wide deployment. It has been evaluated and rejected in Europe and Japan, because of real and projected interference with HF communications. As an active Amatuer Radio Operator, I insist the FCC delay deployment of BPL technology until the state of the equipment and installation processes will guarantee no interference with RF communications.