

As an operator in the Amateur Radio Service, I am concerned about the petition for broadband access over existing utility lines. In my area, the noise (static) from these lines is already quite strong on certain radio frequencies. Should the lines be given double-duty, to carry power and radio waves, I fear that my ability to use radio equipment will be diminished or eliminated. I ask that the FCC look very carefully at this proposal; making certain that the benefit the providers claim doesn't come at a cost to users of the high frequency spectrum.

Sincerely,
Wayne K. Harris
KN6DQ