

I believe a great source of commentary about this subject representing both sides is a website in the Broadband community. It is interesting to note that this site is not HAM Radio Operators but Broadband techies and yet it seems the issue falls on the side of the HAMS. Take a look at it and read the commentary...
<http://www.dslreports.com/shownews/30352>