

Hi, I am an amateur radio operator and I watched and listened to a video produced by the ARRL at some of the BPL test areas. The interference generated by this system over a wide frequency range (including some military frequency bands) will make communications much more difficult. I don't feel the needs of a few commercial interests outweigh the interference this will cause to many wireless radio services. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.