

I am against the FCC considering allowing the use of power lines to transmit internet signals. I feel this is a serious threat to the ham bands, since broad band digital signals running over the unterminated and unshielded transmissions are quite like to radiate all over the place with no control. WB2IPR