

Preventing harmful interference used to be a top priority consideration. This medium, while it may be convenient for many, has the potential for being detrimental to the amateur community. The convenience of one group should not put another at risk. Tests show this to be a certainty.