

The S9 noise generated from Broadband Over Power Line will make any form of HF communications moot. There is simply no way to get out above the tremendous noise floor. If the power companys want to go forward with Broadband Over Power Line they must sheild their power cables, or run a new shielded cable line along teir poles.