

BPL Docket 03-104 is probably the worst decision ever made by the FCC. Tests have already shown that the high level of interference to commonly used communications bands of frequencies is totally unacceptable. Tests demonstrate that the hash produced literally kills any decent clear communications, and the project should be scrapped immediately.