

BPL is unhealthy to the local radio spectrum. It creates a great deal of interference to existing radio services which serve public service radio communications, business radio communications, and amateur radio communications including citizen's band and ham radio. There already are three excellent delivery services for broadband...existing telephone lines, existing cable lines, and satellite. There is no need to disrupt radio communications to create another delivery of broadband internet services. Thank you.

Scott D. Foster