

I am in opposition to the proposed Broadband over Power Lines technology. It has been my experience with normal broadband over coaxial cable that leaks from such cable can and does cause much interference to amateur radio operations. It just stands to reason that broadband over open electrical wires will be radiating much interference to many services.