

I strongly support the position of the American Radio Relay League with respect to BPL. Adoption of BPL would create sufficient interference to greatly degrade the ability of amateur radio operators to communicate. The result would be decimation of amateur ranks - at a time when this country needs them more than ever.

The government of Japan decided against the adoption of BPL. I'd like to think that we are at least as wise as the Japanese.

When all else fails (as in the case of a terrorist attack) amateur radio is there. Let's keep it there!
