

I think its a bad idea,there seems to be concerns about interference that will ruin radio spectrum for other users. I think there are other ways to deliver broadband that would not cause interference such as DSL and cable and im sure ther will be others.we already know the interference problems power lines are capable of,there is know need to add to the problems.