

This technology will have a devastating effect on not only Amateur Radio communications, but many other radio services including the Federal Government. This broad-band technology will be difficult, if not impossible, to eliminate, as has been proven in trials. There are far better ways of delivering these services which will not destroy a vital portion of the spectrum!