

I vote NO on the BPL docket. BPL will create RF noise which will interfere with High Frequency RF communications world wide! I, for one, do not understand how the FCC could support the BPL standard knowing that it would create RF noise. This would effect military communications as well. Does this not violate ITRU agreements with other countries?