

I am very concerned about BPL. Technical studies that I have read show it will harm the very scarce HF radio spectrum, and that it poses high risk to interfering with domestic and international communication systems. The FCC should perform both lab and field studies to assess and realize the risks this technology poses to consumers both at home and abroad.