

I think that sending RF signals over power lines would cause undue interference on Am car radios, short wave, and ham radio. If people need more cables, put them in the ground like other companies have done for years.

David Sauer