

I too am concerned with the amount of trash and indecent exposure our kids, and other concerned viewers, are being bombarded with on our television screens. Just yesterday, I was preusing the lineup for television in the New Orleans area and discovered just one or two examples of what my family should consider. It is unacceptable to the decent American family when a parent has to accept such repulsive programming at afternoon, and early, viewing hours. Though we can indeed unplug the television set, we will miss the chance to encourage our children to make the proper choices in viewing. Television programming is treading past acceptable guidelines today.

Please file a complaint over the Janet Jackson/Justin Timberlake episode during the halftime ceremonies this past Sunday. It is an embarrassing note to feel that this trash was viewed worldwide and may represent my viewpoints to people all over the globe.