

Gentlemen:

The decision to permit Broadband over Power Lines appears, considering the great potential for interference both to and from these systems, to be a very bad decision.

As an amateur radio licensee for 48 years and having been involved in the electronics field, I foresee many problems ahead if BPL is allowed to continue. The introduction of communication systems that effectively render existing critically important systems unusable is certainly not progress.