

Tests of BPL have shown unacceptable interference to other radio services. As a Ham for the last fifty years I worry about our ability to perform emergency communications during a catastrophe with an additional level of broadband noise. Ham radio has proven numerous times to be the final reliable medium for communications during serious natural events. I sincerely hope that sufficient attention is given to the potential problems with BPL.