

With the many avenues already available for receiving broadband service, promoting BPL cannot be based on any dire need. The potential for radio interference promulgated by BPL therefore suggests a very cautious approach to such a technology. I urge the commission to act accordingly.