

I worked as a electric utility engineer for 29 years. Electric Utilities are always looking for new sources of revenue, but are always not willing to spend the money necessary to really make something work right! Allowing this would be a huge mistake on the part of the FCC.