

Being an electrical engineer, and having worked with both the computer/communications industries, I have knowledge about the effects of using the "electrical power industry's " electrical distribution system and broadband communications. I strongly suggest that the two technologies not be merged, because of serious communications disruptions caused by the BPL operation.