

BPL is highly touted as the salvation of people in rural areas. Why then is this Draconian technology being marketed to metropolitan areas where Internet services are available via means that do not interfere with licensed and unlicensed users of the high frequency spectrum, of which I am a member?